ALLIES LAND IN YUGOSLAVIA

1944's First Real Snow Storm

At first glance, Boston's householders were thrilled by the three-inch snowfall that camouflaged the Hub in a wintry mantle of white last night, but a second glance at the drifting piles on the sidewalks brought a sinking feeling inside... for those who had to shovel off those sidewalks. However, Mary Genes and Mary Clooney didn't have to shovel their Roxbury walks... and were thrilled.

REAL, FIRST-HAND STORIES OF N. E. FIGHTERS—START IN NEXT MONDAY'S AMERICAN

2 Balkan Invasion On?

LONDON, Jan. 7 (AP)—Roundabout reports reached Stockholm today that Allied specialist troops had landed at several strategic points on the coast of Yugoslavia. Meanwhile dispatches from Allied headquarters in Algiers called "completely erroneous" a report that "crack Allied divisions" had landed in Yugoslavia. This account was carried by Reuter's, quoting the Stockholms-Tidningen, which in turn was said to have credited its information to reports from Zagreb, capital of puppet Croatia.

A qualified but unofficial source in London said the report "probably was planted by the Germans as a feeler."

The story that Allied specialists had entered Yugoslavia also was roundabout, reaching Stockholm from Zagreb by way of Budapest, and likewise must be considered with reservations.

These reports gave no indication of the size of the forces, or whether they were American or British, but American and British officers and liaison missions have been reported active with Yugoslav guerrillas for several weeks. Some of these apparently are supply officers.

The Reuters dispatch from Stockholm said the Americans and British were engaged in "heavy fighting" with Germans and Ustashe (Croat puppet troops).

Zurich dispatches to London yesterday said Zagreb residents were "suffering from invasion nerves" and mentioned a report circulating in the Croat capital that strong units of the British First and American Seventh armies—neither of which has been engaged in active fighting as a whole since the invasion of Italy—were concentrating on the Italian east coast at Bari for a Balkan invasion.

One highly placed British observer said, however, there undoubtedly was considerable passage of Allied officers across the Adriatic as part of the close liaison with Marshal Tito, but discounted the idea there had been any troop landings in force.

The British First Army was commanded by Lieut.-Gen. Sir K. A. N. Anderson in Tunisia, and the American Seventh Army was commanded by Lieut.-Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., in Sicily.

MAJ. GREGORY BOYINGTON
26-Plane Ace Missing

MARINE ACE BOYINGTON MISSING

OKANOGAN, Wash., Jan. 7 (AP)—By a tragic twist of fate, Maj. Gregory Boyington was reported missing in action only a few hours after this northern Washington farming community rejoiced at the news of his entry into the Marine Corps hall of fame by downing his 26th Japanese plane.

The 31-year-old former "Flying Tiger" joined Marine Maj. Joe Foss of Sioux Falls, S. D., and Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, of First World War fame, as co-holder of the 26-plane record of aerial "kills" for U. S. fliers. He did it in a sweep over New Britain four days ago.

But Greg (Pappy) Boyington did not come back from his triumph. To Mrs. E. J. Hallenback, his mother, came the grim Navy Department telegram last night: "We regret to inform you . . ."

The mother expressed faith that "Greg" would come through safely. She recalled the philosophical note in a Dec. 20 letter to his stepfather, a county employe here, in which he said:

"As you have always taught me, there is nothing worth while unless you earn it . . . you taught me that the faith that I held could beat anything in the world."

"I have learned that many things have to be used to achieve a good purpose. I have had to send men to their deaths. I have had to write to their mothers and fathers; to young wives with children."

"The only consolation I have is that I led my boys into everything they went into."

Nazis Mass Giant Guns

LONDON, Jan. 7 (AP)—The Berlin radio, continuing its pep talks on Nazi preparations to beat off the expected Allied invasion, said today the Atlantic rampart from the Pyrenees mountains to Narvik in north Norway bristled with "7700 heavy guns."

These heavy emplacements, the broadcasts went on, are in addition to more than 3000 heavy anti-tank guns and "millions of land mines" strewn along the coast south from the North sea.

A broadcast last night described a new type of heavy shore battery designed to shell sea targets and bomber formations.

The Berlin correspondent of the Swedish newspaper Aftonbladet said that Field Marshal Gen. Erwin Rommel was directing many German divisions in anti-invasion maneuvers along the French coast.

He said Rommel was testing long-range heavy coastal batteries which fire explosive shells "having a devastating effect on airplanes flying in close formation."

FRENCH COAST RIPPED AGAIN IN DAY ATTACK

By LEO V. DOLAN

LONDON, Jan. 7 (INS)—The Pas de Calais area of the French invasion coast was believed under continuing Allied aerial assault today following night stabs at western Germany and northern France by RAF Mosquitos.

Throughout the morning hours medium bombers passed over the coastal areas of England, heading for the French coast behind a heavy fighter screen and returning several hours later.

The daylight onslaught continued in the afternoon with fighters and light fighter-bombers bearing the brunt of the assignment, which according to watchers on the coast again appeared to be the Pas de Calais region.

An official announcement said U. S. Marauder bombers escorted by RAF, Allied and Dominion fighters had attacked military objectives in northern France without suffering losses.

1000 Reported Dead In Raid on Steffin

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 7 (AP)—An eyewitness to the RAF's Wednesday night raid on the Baltic port of Steffin said today he heard that 1000 persons had been killed.

The traveler said extensive damage was done to the harbor area, a storage tank of aviation gasoline and one of oil for ice breaker; received direct hits. Five anchored merchant ships were fired.

Japs in Fierce Jungle Fight

ADVANCED ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, Jan. 7 (AP)—In the bitterest kind of jungle warfare, Japanese defenders of New Britain island have lost another 600 dead in their stiffening resistance to the Marines who landed at Cape Gloucester 12 days ago.

Gen. MacArthur reported today that Marines pressing eastward toward Borgen Bay have encountered fierce opposition.

Aerial warfare against the Japanese centered at Madang, New Guinea, 180 miles west of Cape Gloucester, where American airmen delivered a 243-ton bombing; at Rabaul on the northeastern tip of New Britain, where a fighter sweep knocked 10 Japanese planes out of the sky, and at Kavieng, New Ireland, where two destroyers were hit and probably sunk.

Red Drive Fans Out

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

MOSCOW, Jan. 7 (AP)—Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's forces, gaining new momentum after smashing 10 miles into prewar Poland, sped forward today in a great fan-shaped offensive toward lifelines vital to enemy operations in the Ukraine and Dnieper bend.

RUSSIA—Pointers indicate farthest gains in the Russ drive toward Rumania and into old Poland. Soviet columns have captured Gorodnitsa and Rokitno on the north of the fan-like front, Chudnov in the center and Lipovets in the Ukraine.

Yanks Capture Peak In Tough Italy Battle

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Jan. 7 (AP)—With grenades, machine guns and small arms, American troops fought over the drenched stones of San Vittore and assailed three bitterly contested strong points in the fortified village today as the Fifth Army pressed its offensive all along the 10-mile front straddling the via Cassinella to Rome.

Forging ahead short distances through snow-covered mountains, the Americans stormed the strong defenses built by the Germans to deny the key towns of Cassino six miles beyond San Vittore. The Yanks captured 3500-foot high Monte Malo, a mile southwest of Vittoria.

Americans had taken more than half of San Vittore and now were driving on three clusters of gray stone buildings where the Germans had barricaded themselves. It was a no-quarter fight.

The doughboys had to creep up to the pillboxes, lost grenades through apertures to wipe out the defenders.

The British on their southern leg of the 10-mile front pushed an attack at Rocca D'Endavro, capturing 79 more prisoners for a two-day total of 126.

The weather grounded most Allied aircraft.

Ciano's Trial To Open in Italy

By the Associated Press
Trial of Count Ciano and other members of the Fascist Grand Council who voted for the ouster of Mussolini July 25 will begin tomorrow at Verona in Northern Italy, the Berlin radio said today.

All are charged with treason by Mussolini's puppet regime.

The broadcast said Ciano, Mussolini's son-in-law and former Italian foreign minister, would be the first to face the court and that sentences were expected to be pronounced within a few days after the opening of the trials.

RAF Raids Rhodes

CAIRO, Jan. 7 (AP)—RAF heavy bombers attacked the port of Rhodes, Nazi-held island in the eastern Mediterranean, during Jan. 5-6.

The Nazis appeared unable to halt the Russian machine.

Over a front of 175 miles from the lower Pripiet marshes, near Rokitno, 10 miles inside the old Polish border, to the flat steppe near Zhashkov, 40 miles south of Belaya Tserkov, the first Ukrainian army was ripping the Germans to pieces and capturing huge stores of booty.

To the north, in the Nevel sector, Gen. Ivan Bagramian's Baltic offensive swept deep into strong cores of resistance, where the German spectre of encirclement was the same as in the Ukraine.

Snowfalls and blizzards were an aid to advance patrols cutting behind Nazi lines and threatening communications of the German forces before Leningrad, just as Vatutin's fast tanks and cavalry were a peril to the German's main lines leading to the Dnieper and the Black sea.

Stockholm newspapers quoted a German military spokesman as hinting at the possibility of German withdrawal from all Russia, possibly because of the threat of encirclement both in the north and south, and that the German northern and southern armies have been split.)

Four communication centers lay within striking distance of Vatutin's forces:

Rovno, about 35 miles inside the old Polish border and 80 miles west of Novograd Volynski. Both the Warsaw-Kiev highway and the Warsaw railway pass through here.

Shepetovka, 35 miles southwest of Novograd Volynski, one of the Ukraine's important railway junctions.

Vinnitsa, 70 miles south of Zhutimir and 60 miles from the Dniester, former boundary of Rumania.

Zhmerinka, 20 miles south of Vinnitsa on the Odessa-Warsaw line which the Germans must hold if they hope to remain any place east of Odessa.

Polish Towns Under Nazi Martial Law Reds Hear

LONDON, Jan. 7 (AP)—Tass, Soviet news agency, said in a Moscow broadcast today that German authorities "have proclaimed martial law in Warsaw, Lublin, Radom, Jaroslavl and other Polish towns near the Soviet frontier."

The broadcast said the information came from Geneva, Switzerland.

Warsaw and Lublin are about 50 miles west of the German-Soviet frontier established across Poland in September 1939. Radom is about 100 miles west of the line. Jaroslavl is only a few miles west of it.

"NOTHING PERSONAL"
Zelma Monahan, AFL officer who declared Dorothy Lamour was causing loss of work hours by her war bond sales tours through war plants, today said she meant "nothing personal" by her remarks made in Cleveland.

It's Lamour The Merrier

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 7 (AP)—Dorothy Lamour says it just can't be true her war-factory appearances hamper production and "the next time Sec. Morgenthau asks me to go on a bond-selling tour, I'm going."

Advised Unionist Zelma E. Monahan had told the Cleveland Federation of Labor she had heard the actress "was responsible for the loss of thousands of man hours when she went through war plants and stopped work," Doty exclaimed:

"The only times I've ever been in defense plants were on bond selling tours. I never talked to the workers except during their lunch hours."

"War plant workers are serious-minded people, and the idea they'd stop work just because an actress happened around is plain silly."

Miss Monahan, in Cleveland, told a reporter she would apologize to Miss Lamour by letter. "I meant nothing personal," she said.

Philadelphia Health Periled by Strike

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 7 (AP)—Rubbish heaps grew in front of thousands of Philadelphia homes today and a city official said public health was menaced as about 3000 striking city employees remained away from their jobs a second day.

Hub Woman to Name British Escort Ship

Mrs. John E. Kennedy of Hereford st., Back Bay, will serve as sponsor at the christening of HMS Inman, a destroyer escort vessel, at the Boston Navy Yard next Thursday, Jan. 13.

Juggernaut

LONDON, Jan. 7 (AP)—In driving the Germans back across the old pre-war Polish frontier the Russian army has advanced 775 airline miles from Stalingrad — approximately the distance from New York to Chicago—since last February.

The advance represents an average gain of about two miles per day.

As the weather bureau warned of fast dropping temperatures, expected to plunge below 20 tonight, Boston's Public Works Commr. George G. Hyland sent out a crew of 600 men and 107 plowing trucks to remove snow, slush and ice from downtown Boston.

The regular force of the park department was sent out by Commr. William P. Long to plow and sand the traffic arteries in the Fenway, Franklin Park, Jamaica-way and other parks.

State highway officials said the Berkshire region had 10 inches but that the snow stopped at midnight. Main roads were being cleared.

Field conditions at Logan Airport, East Boston, forced cancellation of the first two New York flights of the American Airlines and the snow-clogged streets disrupted bus and streetcar schedules. Many trains ran behind schedule, causing tie-ups.

Fears of another milk shortage were voiced by Boston distributors when they learned that many highways in New Hampshire and Vermont were barricaded by nearly two feet of snow, preventing farmers from reaching milk collecting stations.

TRAVEL IMPOSSIBLE

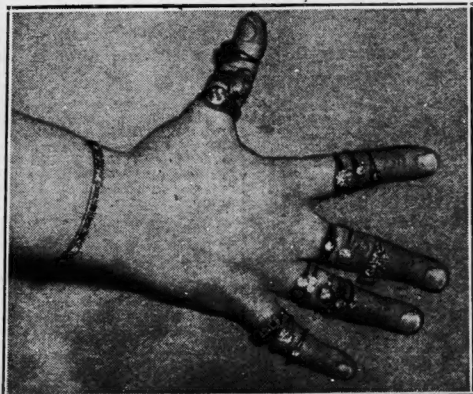

Travel in the Franconia Notch area of the White Mountains was practically impossible, according to the N. H. state police.

From many different points came reports of auto skid accidents and at least one death was blamed on the storm. Norman Burgess, 73, of Falmouth, Me., died in a Portland hospital of injuries when he was hit by an auto during a heavy snow flurry.

Patrol Ship Sinks In Crash Off Jersey

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 7 (INS)—A merchant ship and a patrol vessel collided off the Delaware coast last night, and the latter craft "apparently sank," 4th Naval District headquarters reported today.

The accident occurred about 60 miles southeast of Cape May, N. J. Several Coast Guard vessels were rushed to the scene, and others were standing by to pick up survivors, the Navy said.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 7 (INS)—John Carradine, movie actor, and Mrs. Carradine have decided to take their troubles into a divorce court.

Mrs. Carradine said she had planned to divorce the actor, just back from a tour with his Shakespearean repertoire company, in either Reno or Las Vegas, Nev. Curley Arraignment Set for Jan. 14

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7 (AP)—Rep. James M. Curley (D of Massachusetts) and three others indicted with him as associates in Engineers Corp. Inc., a war contracts firm, will be arraigned in Federal District Court here next Friday at 10:30 a. m.

The boys are: Harold Doherty, 17, of Dorchester ave., Dorchester, William Altherr, 17, also of Dorchester ave., Dorchester, grandson of Mrs. Curran, and two 15-year-old boys who will probably face juvenile court.

The robbery took place last Saturday night when a small house safe was smashed with a sledgehammer and $3900 in cash and gems valued at at least $5500 were taken. The jewels were found in the home of Altherr, one of the youths under arrest. They included 17 rings, and two diamond rings alone are said to be worth $5000. Mrs. Curran is the widow of Edward Curran who operated the Blenheim hotel

One of them told police the stolen jewels were hidden in a bureau drawer in his home, where later they were located by Boston police.

50-FT. WHALE IS WASHED UP AT COHASSET

Even the oldest in Cohasset were glad today it was cold winter, because washing in from the sea came a 50-foot whale to lodge on a rocky ledge at the rear of the J. Franklin McElwain estate, Atlantic ave.

Whales ashore in summer, under a warm sun, become unpleasant company, as Police Chief Hector Pelletier observed when he was called to Atlantic ave. to view the dead monster.

It was sighted first a mile offshore by John Knowles of Jerusalem rd., who thought it might be a submarine in distress, because the black object was wallowing and seemed to have no direction.

People gathered as the whale was driven in by a stiff wind lashing the sea.

Short Cut for Vet Aid Bill Sought in House

By FRANK REILLY
Boston American Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7—Pressure for swift action on legislation to provide a year's pay for discharged veterans increased so rapidly today that members of the House military affairs committee, due to reconvene Tuesday, were reported considering means of taking a short cut in their deliberations.

Sullivan Checks Up On Bushnell's Data

After two lengthy conferences with aides of Atty.-Gen. Bushnell, during which a one-reel motion picture was shown, Police Commr. Thomas F. Sullivan was ready today to start a thorough and detailed investigation of "reams" of material gathered in connection with the recent police cases.

Intimating that four of the high-ranking officers against whom prosecution was dropped by the attorney-general last Monday may go before trial boards, Commr. Sullivan voiced the possibility he may have to assume "some sort of a judicial position" in the matter before it is closed.

All that delayed the launching of his investigation, apparently, was the appointment of a legal advisor, whose identity the commissioner declined to reveal. He explained that the person he has in mind is ill.

He indicated he was confident he would have full access to the material collected by Bushnell and his staff in their probe of Boston conditions and added that the legal advisor he appoints will be "satisfactory" to the attorney-general.

Ship to Honor Ensign O'Toole

A destroyer escort will be christened at Charlestown Navy Yard on Jan. 22 in honor of Ensign John A. O'Toole of Dorchester, a former Record-American-Sunday Advertiser employee who was one of the first casualties of the North African campaign.

Mrs. Ruth A. O'Toole, of Cameron st., Dorchester, widow of the hero, will sponsor the vessel, and officials of Boston College have been invited to attend. Ensign O'Toole, a former newsboy, who became circulation supervisor of these three newspapers, was the first Boston College man to lose his life in the African campaign.

Ensign O'Toole was killed during the assault on French Morocco on Nov. 8, 1942. He was awarded the Navy Cross for heroism and the Purple Heart posthumously.

President Roosevelt planned today to confer with congressional leaders before deciding the date he will address his annual state of the Union message to a joint session of Congress.

The White House said that due to the President's recent attack of influenza, he definitely will not go before the Congress with his state of the Union message Monday when Congress reconvenes.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN FLATLEY OF PITTSBURGH
Discharged Soldier Awaits Compensation

Mustering-Out Pay Needed by This Vet

Special to the Boston American

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 7—John Flatley of Pittsburgh is the type of disabled veteran Congress could help with mustering-out pay if and when it gets down to business.

John claims if his government pays him a few hundred dollars now in recognition of his service he could do what he wants to do—get back on his feet and help himself.

John's story is essentially the same story of government indifference and red tape that could be told by most discharged veterans.

John was inducted into the Army air corps last March. He trained at Atlantic City. He was married the night he left for the Army.

BOTH EARS INJURED

He suffered concussion of both ears while on the sub-machine gun firing range.

Doctors at the veterans' hospital told him he must have all of his teeth extracted to prevent further infection.

The Army didn't discharge him at once. It sent him to a radio school at Madison, Wis. Two days after he arrived there, he landed in the base hospital.

Three weeks later he was discharged from the Army as physically unfit.

Before his discharge, he filed a compensation claim. That was in September.

So far he hasn't even been notified to take his physical examination, a government required preliminary before his case can even be decided.

He did odd jobs when he first came back, but one day, with a high temperature, he was taken to the veterans' hospital at Aspinwall.

He was discharged after three weeks as temporarily relieved and got a mechanic job—work he liked.

BABY DIES

His wife was expecting a baby and early in December he took her to West Penn Hospital. The baby lived only a few hours.

The night the baby died, he collapsed in a restaurant, and a police car took him back to the veterans' hospital.

He was there three weeks and should have stayed longer, but he asked for a furlough to take his wife home from the hospital and got it. It was for seven days.

Before he could return to the hospital he was stricken with the flu and because he overstayed his furlough was told he couldn't return to the hospital for 90 days.

Dr. Robert C. Cook, manager of the hospital, said if Flatley's was an emergency case he might be able to waive the 90-day rule when the flu symptoms disappear.

Dr. Cook explained because of overcrowded conditions at the hospital, they were unable to reserve a bed for a patient longer than seven days.

Meanwhile, John's wife is too weak to work, he is too ill to work and his debts are piling up.

Army Emergency Relief loaned them $100 and the Red Cross has loaned them $50. Sister Mary Thomas, of Sacred Heart Church, came to their aid with a food order and $5.

But John is worried about paying back these debts and saving enough money so his wife can live while he returns to Aspinwall for treatments that will make him well.

That's how the mustering-out pay would help, Mr. Congressman.

Mattapan Marine Tells Tarawa Epic

The folks at home in Mattapan were the last thought of a Marine private before the terrible battle of Tarawa—and his first thought when the hell and fire of it was done.

Before the action, Pvt. Paul W. Aronne, 20, first runner in the first assault ship—wrote a letter to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick J. Aronne and sister, Barbara, 18, of Osceola st., and immediately afterwards another one to them.

On the Honor Roll of the Boston Record-American-Sunday Advertiser, where he left his job of apprentice pressman to enlist in the Marines, Aronne was an all-around athlete at Hyde Park High. His first letter was this:

"We headed into combat on another campaign. Wherever it is, they told us it would be a damn good fight. I was made the runner. You can bet your life that if I have to take a message through, I'll get the damned thing through."

And when it was all over, here was the letter.

"I've survived Tarawa through the grace of God, and it was through the prayers you sent me, and I thank you for them.

"After seeing half our men get killed just making the landing, we really got our temper up. Nothing could have stopped us then. Not one Marine gave a damn whether they got killed or not as long as they got at least a couple of Japs.

"The second day we had to float our guns in by rubber boats along the pier. Our sergeant and myself would then bring it back to the end of the pier for another gun. Meanwhile, Marines were being landed at the reef.

"The three of us kept going under fire, dragging casualties in, loading them on the boat and taking them to the end of the pier to a corpsman who worked on them. In all, we brought back about 50 casualties."

CAFE BATTLE DIVORCE SUIT IN 2D ROUND

With testimony about ir-pulling cafe fight and bc and whiskey jigger throwing placed in the records, the second round in the cross-labeled divorce battle of Walter Davison, of Wakefield, treasurer of the Wakefield Machine Co., and his wife, Thelma, now of Danvers, was set for Jan. 19 in Middlesex Probate Court today.

A graphic description of a fight in a Salem cafe between Mrs. Davison and another woman was given to Judge George M. Poland by Raymond Russell, of Lafayette st. Salem. He said he was present with Davison and two women when Mrs. Davison came in, accompanied by two women friends.

Mrs. Davison called her husband and wife names, Russell testified, then she and her friends jumped on the woman sitting with Davison, pulled her hair and started a fracas.

Earlier, Davison testified that shortly after their marriage in January 1942, his wife sat in another man's lap and kissed him during a party at their home.

Coakley Kin Must Pay $450

In a sealed verdict today a superior court jury returned a verdict of $450.64 against Mrs. Mary A. Mahoney of Homer st. Newton, daughter of former Governor's Councilor Daniel H. Coakley, in a suit growing out of an alleged grocery debt.

The suit, for $684.32, was brought against Mrs. Mahoney by Nicholas A. Youtirritsa of Commonwealth ave. Newton, and during the hearing Coakley was a witness for his daughter.

After deliberating more than four hours, the jury reached and sealed its verdict at 6 p. m. yesterday. When it was opened, it was for $400, but Judge Allen G. Buttrick said to the foreman:

"Apparently you didn't figure the interest. I understand you wish to include the interest."

The foreman said that was correct and, with the other jurors agreeing, $50.64 was added.

Stork Gets Extra Gas—and Quick!

Rocket Plane Opens New Era Of Air Travel

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7 (AP)—Whole new vistas of rocket plane travel were opened today with the disclosure that a fighter plane using "jet propulsion" has been developed and pronounced a success.

The new plane, visions of which awakened scientific research years ago, was announced jointly last night by the Army Air Forces and the Royal Air Force. It already has completed several hundred test flights without mishap, and quantity production will begin soon.

Today's planes of orthodox design have about reached their speed limits, and jet propulsion has been regarded by engineers as the logical next step.

Jet propulsion—commonly called rocket propulsion—eliminates the propeller. Instead of a propeller "biting" into the air to pull the plane forward, jet propulsion, a series of powerful explosions, not unlike a Fourth of July skyrocket, push it forward.

The propeller performs satisfactorily at speeds up to 400 miles plus, the present maximum of the fastest warplanes, but the limit is believed to be something substantially below 500 miles.

Because of wartime secrecy, few details of the new American-British fighter can be expected until it has gone into actual combat, and its secrets are known to the enemy, but the formal announcement that the plane operates "at high altitudes and extreme speed," can be taken to mean that the United Nations have, in fact, a secret weapon. The only other detail announced was that it is a twin-engine plane.

The new plane uses engines designed and developed by Group Capt. Frank Whittle of the RAF, who as far back as 1939 was reported to be working with blower-type rotary compressors, the rotor bearing and the compressor being liquid cooled.

New Rocket Plane Gives London Scare

LONDON, Jan. 7 (AP)—When one of the new British-American jet-propelled planes first flew over the outer London area in an experimental flight many people rushed for shelter, thinking a heavy bomb was screaming down.

The mystery plane's arrival was heralded by a distinct screech which grew in volume until it sounded like a giant whistling kettle. Then the rumble of its powerful engines was heard as the plane shot overhead.

REBEL UNION OF FISHERMEN GAINS POWER

Although branded a "phony" by Patrick J. McHugh, secretary-treasurer of the Atlantic Fishermen's Union, a new local union of New Bedford fishermen continued to grow today in a revolt movement seen likely to bring a swift end to the fishing strike.

McHugh denounced the New Bedford group as made up of a "bunch of stooges" and declared the Boston membership of the fishermen's union will not falter in the fight against OPA wholesale fish price ceilings.

Seraphin P. Jason, business agent of the New Bedford Teamsters Union, which like the Atlantic Fishermen's Union is an AFL affiliate, said he was granting a temporary charter to fishermen in his city at their own request, until they obtain recognition.

As soon as weather conditions permit, they will put 24 druggers into immediate operation, ending seven weeks of idleness due to the walkout.

Fire Hazards Cut In 30 Theaters

Strict enforcement of safety laws enacted after the Cocoanut Grove disaster resulted in added fire escapes and elimination of fire hazards in 30 Boston theaters and halls, George C. Parsons, chief of inspections of state public safety department, announced today.

Seating capacity of Boston Arena was increased from 2,400 to 4,400 after additional exits were installed. An additional 1,000 seats was permitted in Mechanics hall for the same reason.

Parsons warned theater patrons that violation of "no smoking" laws carried a fine of $50. He said many reports were received of persons failing to heed "no smoking" signs in theaters.

FEW CHICKENS, MANY EGGS

The housewife shopping for week-end meals is finding few chickens but too many eggs, hardly any butter but plenty of pork, little fish but an adequate supply of hams and bacon. The butter situation is the worst.

Only about 40 families in each 100 living in or near Boston can get it. The rest are eating margarine. A large number of dealers had their supplies cut another 30 per cent this week.

The chicken supply is spotty—some stores have some while others have none. Several of the larger wholesalers have not received a pound since the freeze order of last week.

Eggs are so plentiful that the medium sizes sell for 35c a dozen at the larger marts.

There is an abundance of pork loins or chops, but beef is of the second grade quality. There is, however, some excellent lamb on the market and some veal.

The fish strike is at last hitting the public hard—only about 25 per cent of what is needed can be found in the stores. Haddock filets at 29 a pound; smelts at 22 a pound; mackerel at 9 a pound and salmon at 43 are being sold, however, at some of the large chains.

The best buys in vegetables are beets at 10 a bunch; cauliflower at 30 a head; chicory at 20 a bunch; escarole at 15 a pound; lettuce at 15 a head; mushrooms at 83 a pound; potatoes (white) at 54 a peck; spinach at 9 a pound and turnips (yellow) at 5 a pound and (white) 6 a pound.

Apples vary from 11 to 15 a pound; oranges range from 25 to 50 a dozen and tangerines, depending on size, are from 27 to 40 a dozen. Grapes are still around at 19 a pound but getting scarcer.

The following vegetables are in the stores in moderate quantities at the following prices: broccoli, 21 a pound; carrots, 15 a bunch; celery, 15 to 40 a bunch; parsnips, 20 a pound; snap beans (green), 23 a pound and blue Hubbard squash, 6 to 8 a pound.

New Ceiling Price Lists Add 1943 Canned Goods

Local rationing boards today were distributing to retail stores new, simplified ceiling price lists for staple food commodities, to go into effect on Monday.

Instead of 10 lists as formerly, three master lists of top dollars-and-cents market basket prices have been developed. The maximum ceilings vary but, slightly from those on the old lists, but several new items and new brands packed in 1943 have been added while other commodities have been dropped.

Among the additions are canned beans; 8-ounce and 3-ounce packaged cheese; 8-ounce breakfast cocoa; 1-pound packaged graham and soda crackers; 20-ounce packaged pancake and buckwheat flours; 1-pound oleomargarine; pineapple juice; poultry; canned and condensed soups; 4-ounce packed tea; 8-ounce and 16-ounce tea bags.

Removed from the new lists are canned codfish; canned lobster; honey; molasses; orange juice; blended orange and grapefruit juices; sardines; shrimp and pure maple syrup.

Wife Slayer Mascari Dies in Sing Sing Chair

OSSINING, N. Y., Jan. 7 (AP)

The Sing Sing prison electric chair took the life of Joseph C. Mascari, 32, for the fatal bludgeoning of his wife, Rose, two years ago.

Prison attendants said Mascari refused the traditional offer of special meals. They said he was the first condemned man to pass up the privilege.

'New Orleans Day'

Massachusetts will observe "New Orleans Day" on Saturday in honor of the American soldiers who won the battle of New Orleans in the war of 1812.

In proclaiming the 132d anniversary of the fight, Gov. Saltonstall called on all schools, churches, patriotic organizations and citizens in general to celebrate the day.

$1000-Plate War Loan Dinner Will Honor 'Unconquerables'

The valor and sacrifices of the "Unconquerables," those United Nations peoples who carried on the fight against the Axis during the gloomiest days of the war, will serve as the keynote of the $1000-a-plate Fourth War Loan dinner at the Copley-Plaza Hotel tomorrow night.

Joseph Auslander's series of poetic tributes, entitled "The Unconquerables" and recently published in the Saturday Evening Post, will be featured during the dinner, sponsored by the Jordan Marsh Co.

Heroes of the war, including 23-year-old Maj. Allen V. Martin; the entire crew of the Rangoon Ramblers, who fought under the famed Gen. Claire Chennault, leader of the Flying Tigers; and Rear Adm. Dewitt Ramsay will join with hundreds of notables at the dinner.

The Fourth War Loan starts officially on Jan. 18, but in the coming week numerous programs staged on the fifth floor, annex, of the Jordan Marsh Co. will constitute a prelude to the big campaign. Tomorrow night's Copley Plaza dinner will give the drive a flying start.

Ex-Gov. Channing Cox, who will serve as toastmaster, will introduce the distinguished guests who will include ambassadors, official representatives of the Army, Navy, Marines and Coast Guard, and guests of honor including Gov. and Mrs. Leverett Saltonstall and Mayor and Mrs. Maurice Tobin.

London Glow

NEW YORK, Jan. 7 (INS)—Londoners, used to groping about in the blackout, had in inkling today of the way their city will gleam on Victory Night.

Small children thought the burst of light "was a miracle."

Jobs Restored, 2 Refuse Them

Thomas A. Horrigan and Paul W. Poes, Peabody leather workers whose discharges last October precipitated a strike which did not end until the Army stepped in 16 days later, today refused to go back to work despite a New England Regional War Labor Board order that they be reinstated.

Both men, backed by American Federation of Labor members of the regional W.L.B., protested against a string attached to the ruling, that they must rejoin the International Fur & Leather Workers Union, CIO, and pay up their back dues, as a condition to regaining their jobs.

Richard Gustin of Bangor, Me., an AFL member of the labor board, will write a minority report arguing against the order.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN, FRIDAY, JAN. 7, 1944.

18 BACK FROM HELL . . By Burris Jenkins, Jr.

At 11:35 that night Lieut. Wharton of Newport and Harvard stares at a dial in the plotting room seven feet under the water line of the U. S. destroyer Duncan. The dial discloses a Jap force at 20,000 yards out in the darkness behind the island and closing fast.

It is Sunday, Oct. 11. In the unventilated plotting room the heat grows oppressive. Eight men besides the lieutenant sit at phones and instruments, silent and tense as the needle on the dial moves from 20,000 to 15,000 to 10,000 to 5000. This moment, thinks Lieut. Richard T. Wharton, has been a long time coming since he left his seat on the Stock Exchange in March of '41—an inevitable moment since the American task force began the maneuvers over these waters a few days ago in a chess game to trap the Japs. It's "check-mate" now—one way or the other.

At 11:35 the dial hand touches 2800. Nerves and heat in the plotting room stretch to an unbearable tension which suddenly and completely snaps with the broadcast words from the bridge—electrifying words that sound on the Duncan for the first time in her six months of life—"Commence firing!"

From end to end the ship trembles with salvos of all guns, and over the interphones Lieut. Wharton, as assistant gunnery officer, can hear running commentary from the bridge as the four cruisers—San Francisco, Boise, Helena and Salt Lake City—and five destroyers, including the Duncan, let go with everything.

Forward Engine Room Hit by 8-Inch Shell

To the men in the plotting room the battle overhead is somehow far off and impersonal. With automatic precision they go about their duties only half identified, themselves, with the news that drifts down from above the waterline—"we are now engaging a 10,000-ton enemy cruiser"—and then they feel the impact of an eight-inch shell exploding in the forward engine room snuffing it out.

Still the indicator on the dial shows the Duncan closing on the cruiser until the needle wavers at 2800 yards and, though he doesn't know it for sure, it's at this point that Dick Wharton's best friend—Ensign Robert Fowler 3d, Harvard '40—in another part of the ship is giving the order to fire three torpedoes at the Jap cruiser and earn for himself, posthumously, the Navy Cross.

About midnight the last word comes from the bridge—"seven hits scored on enemy destroyer"—and then the phones go dead. A blasting explosion from a Jap 8-inch shell has swept the Duncan's bridge, killing 35 men and officers.

Instantly all communication in the plotting room terminates—phones, machinery and apparatus completely knocked out—and two minutes later an eight-inch shell bursts through the plotting room itself, ricochets off the machinery, glances off the overhead and explodes, plunging the ship in darkness and wounding every man in the shambles of the compartment.

Cut off from superior officers, with shrapnel flying everywhere, his men and himself wounded and water knee-deep in that compartment, Lieut. Wharton takes it on himself to abandon ship. (He doesn't know that the captain, who with the executive officer, is still miraculously alive, has already given that order.)

Crew Struggles With Water-Tight Door

For three minutes Lieut. Wharton and the eight enlisted men struggled to open the water-tight door. It has become bent by the explosions and only with great effort do they succeed in undogging the door leading into the crew's mess hall.

Lieut. Wharton sends his men to escape hatches forward, he himself determined to reach the bridge where he "can find out what's going on."

He climbs the hatch ladder to the wardroom deck to find it ablaze. He looks in the galley, observing a large hole yawning in the bulkhead. Steam burns him slightly about the legs. He notices that his left hand is wounded—a compound fracture of the wrist bones—but he "wasn't actually aware of it until now."

Still meeting no one and yet "for some strange reason not the least afraid—just reacting mechanically"—the 34-year-old lieutenant steps briskly into the wardroom and there for the only time in his life sees a man "literally scared to death." The man is standing in the doorway, legs spread and one hand resting on the bulkhead, "frozen like a statue," Lieut. Wharton speaks sharply to him, shakes him, and finally kicks him in the shins.

The big man doesn't move, stares straight ahead. Lieut. Wharton, slight and wiry, crawls past him and climbs the ladder to the radio room.

The water-tight door is jammed, but fortunately a shell hole is big enough to squeeze through.

Dick Wharton is now 12 feet above the water and with his flashlight—"which thank God, never fails me!"—works his way up through the smoke and flames past the decoding room where his flashlight reveals an officer sitting at his desk—without a head.

In the radio shack everybody is dead, some with hands still on the keys.

To reach the fo'c'sle deck, Lt. Wharton had to crawl through another shell hole. He can see water in the hole below. He tries to get up to the bridge, but the outside ladders are a mass of debris.

The ship is still doing about 22 knots, but as far as Lieut. Wharton can discover there is no one alive on her until he meets three sailors coming down from the wreckage of the bridge. One of them, with an arm and leg hopelessly mangled, is being helped by the two others. The sailors report that the captain has long ago ordered abandon ship. They all climb the ladder up the mast to the next deck. Somehow Lieut. Wharton manages to open his clasp knife, using his wounded left hand—"something I couldn't do with it now"—but is unable to cut loose a life-raft.

Hears Propellers a Few Feet Away

He orders the three men to jump, advising them to dive flat to escape the propellers. Wharton follows quickly, goes down about 20 feet and hears the grinding sound of the propellers a few feet away. He comes up in two seconds, the propellers safely past, and thinks "Now what?"

So far he hasn't inflated his life-belt, which doesn't worry him. He's "done a lot of swimming since he can remember." He calmly inflates and tightens the belt, then swims after the sailors who wear kapok life-jackets. He gets them all together and they take 20-minute turns holding up the sailor who has lost his leg and arm.

As dawn comes, planes fly over too high for identification. One of them descends to circle a destroyer now visible a few miles away.

At 9 a. m. the badly wounded sailor dies. They remove his life-jacket and with a muttered prayer let him go. They use his jacket as a raft.

Before noon a plane flies over their heads revealing "the most glorious sight I ever saw—a big white star!" Soon men are pulling them aboard the U. S. destroyer which all night has risked destruction to pick up survivors, and Dick Wharton finds himself in the bunk of a warm stateroom fairly comfortable from the ministrations of three Navy doctors until he hears the news that in the stateroom opposite lies his friend Bob Fowler—dying.

Before he dies Dick crawls over to him, but Bob doesn't recognize his friend's voice. It's some consolation to know that a few days before Fowler heard from his wife that he was the father of a son.

Now waiting in the hope of being declared fit again for sea duty Lieut. Wharton remarks dryly:

"After all, I would like to get one glimpse of the enemy. In all those months in the Atlantic and South Pacific—even as we watched the Wasp go down 500 yards away—I never saw an enemy sub, periscope, ship, plane, gun—or Japi! What a war!"

The Gates Must Not Be Closed

WHEN CONGRESS RECONVENES on January 10 it should take up the Gillette-Taft-Baldwin-Rogers resolution.

This resolution calls for the formation of a Presidential commission to create machinery, in conjunction with the United Nations, to rescue the millions of Jews who are now being systematically exterminated by the Nazis and their quislings.

When the Presidential commission gets to work, one of the first things it should do is to seek the abrogation of the Chamberlain "White Paper" of May, 1939.

At present, Palestine is being administered by Great Britain in conformity with the policy embodied in the "White Paper," by virtue of which Jewish immigration into Palestine is now limited and is to be practically stopped after March 31, 1944. The Jews are to be reduced to a permanent minority of 33 per cent in the country and the sale of land to Jews is to be practically prohibited.

This is a direct repudiation on England's part of the League of Nations mandate and the Balfour Declaration incorporated in the Mandate of 1917.

According to this declaration, Palestine was to become a national Jewish home under the protectorate of England.

In 1939, after the Jews had created a modern civilization in what was practically an Arabian desert, England turned her back on her solemn promise of 1917.

This perfidy of Britain toward the Jews was denounced by no one more vigorously than by Winston Churchill in Parliament in the debate on the "White Paper" in 1939, when he said:

"As one intimately and responsibly concerned in the earlier stages of our Palestine policy I could not stand by and see solemn engagements into which Britain has entered before the world set aside for reasons of administrative convenience or for the sake of a quiet life.

"I should feel personally embarrassed in the most acute manner if I lent myself by silence or inaction to what I must regard as an act of repudiation.

"I regret very much that the pledge of the Balfour Declaration, endorsed as it has been by successive governments, and the conditions under which we obtained the mandate have both been violated by the government's proposal.

"I select one point upon which there is plainly a breach and repudiation of the Balfour Declaration—the provision that Jewish immigration can be stopped in five years' time by the decision of an Arab majority. This is a plain breach of a solemn obligation."

As the Palestine Mandate was ordered by the League of Nations, it cannot be abrogated even by Great Britain herself without the consent of the League.

But the League did not give its consent to the 1939 abrogation.

The action, then, of England in limiting immigration into the Jewish homeland and of stopping it entirely next March is, as Mr. Churchill so vigorously says, "an act of repudiation" and a "plain breach of a solemn obligation."

It is, therefore, it seems to us, the bounden duty of Congress in passing the Gillette-Taft-Baldwin-Rogers Resolution, and also the duty of the President, to request—or demand—of England that she abrogate the provisions of the "White Paper" of 1939 and again throw Palestine wide-open to the sorely oppressed and harried Jews of occupied Europe.

How can England and the United States demand of Soviet Russia that she live up to the terms of her obligations to us if we stand idly by while England breaks her solemn promise to the Jews in regard to Palestine?

As the American Palestine Committee says:

"The gates of Palestine must not close in 1944!"

More Wastepaper Needed

THE Christmas holidays brought millions of tons of paper into American homes.

They were gaily wrapped packages, gift containers, table and tree decorations and a torrent of greeting cards. All should be contributed to the salvage drive NOW. The paper shortage is serious and it is becoming more serious.

John T. Kiley, regional salvage manager, recently said: "Only our ability to reach new sources of wastepaper and obtain a much stronger participation by those already contributing can possibly offset a disastrous wartime situation."

The patriotic persons who have given newspapers, books, magazines and cartons to the paper collectors should arrange to make weekly donations.

And those who have yet to make their first contribution should make it without further delay.

Every pound of paper counts. Every pound is urgently needed to continue the operations of vital industries, including the packing of food, supplies and ammunition for our armed forces at home and abroad.

MR. BROWNING'S advice as above is excellent. Paste it in your hat or on your shaving mirror, young fellow. Pick out the best man in your business or profession and try to be as good as he is. Do all you can to find out what made him click and try to do the same. I know a number of successful fellows who have followed this system. We have a cook. We always have a cook. Even when we stayed in Beverly Hills last winter we had a cook. At that time it was being said that because of the acute shortage Hedy Lamarr, Dorothy Lamour, Bette Davis and several other residents of Beverly Hills couldn't get a cook. When it comes to getting cooks my girl friend reminds me of that slogan, "we do the impossible immediately, the miracles take a little longer." Of course, I must say I believe our pup has something to do with getting cooks. Some of his best friends have been cooks. When an applicant for a cook job comes to the house the pup edges up to her and looks at her with his big soulful eyes and extends his paw in welcome. They my girl friend says: "That is very unusual. He isn't very friendly to strangers as a rule." That gets the interview off to a good start. That is, if the cook likes dogs. And, of course, if she doesn't like dogs she probably isn't much of a cook.

ALMOST CONFIDENTIAL: Saw a kid with a sling shot today. First I have seen in years. Next thing I know I shall see some lads playing leap frog. Among the kids in Brooklyn leap frog was called "Par" but I don't know why. "Can my friend Sam Han get into the My Name Is a Poem Club?" asks a San Franciscan. Am afraid not, as his first name is really Samuel. Bill Hill was recently rejected because his first name is really William. Am afraid the M. N. I. A. P. Club is going exclusive on us. Dunninger, the well-known mind reader, seems to be doing wonderful things with telepathy. I have always believed much could be done in this field. An expert on telepathy once offered to teach me mind reading but I declined. As I said then, if my friends knew I was a mind reader, they wouldn't play poker with me. Besides, I don't want to know too much about what people are thinking of me. You know the "where ignorance is bliss" angle.

QUESTIONS FROM CLIENTS:

Q—Why shouldn't a man with only one eye have an automobile driving license? He can see where he is going can't he? A—Such a man can see all right but two eyes are necessary to judge distances properly. Q—Assistance of your Horses & Women Department is needed. My girl talks flirtatiously about other men leaving the impression she considers them vastly superior to me. How can I stop this line of conversation without hurting her feelings or putting the affair in jeopardy? A—Our H & W Department says your saying "without hurting her feelings" proves you are a gentleman. They say it is not "a line of conversation" with the young lady but a characteristic that is probably incurable. Therefore, regret we have no solution to your problem. Our experts say this young lady after marriage would probably drive her husband wild talking about how wonderful the husbands of other women are, telling what her married friends have that she hasn't, etc.

MOORES: "So no great fighter was named Moore. How about Pal Moore?" asks a New Yorker. It depends on which "Pal" Moore you mean. The real name of the original "Pal" Moore who fought in the days of Battling Nelson was Paul von Frankke. He was not a bonafide Moore. However, the second "Pal" Moore, prominent in the early 20's, was born Thomas Wilson Moore. So I am stuck for a stogie. Incidentally, a kindly Minneapolis correspondent writes: "Eddie, I am worried about your long so many stogies. How are you going to pay for that mishap you bought on time for your usifer? Don't worry, lady. The coat is all paid for. Besides I have been losing to fellows who bet one stogie and winning from some betting boxes of stogies."

My Day

By Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK, THURSDAY — To go back to my diary, on Monday evening I spoke at the institute of advanced sciences at Columbia University.

Tuesday at noon I spoke for the Cosmopolitan Club, and that afternoon I went out to Westport, Ct., to speak in a movie house and to show my films. I returned on Wednesday after going, in the morning, to the school to talk to the children. Today I am speaking at noon and showing my film of my southwest Pacific trip at a meeting of the Rotary Club.

A LETTER CAME TO ME the other day which unfortunately bears no address.

"Our favorite nephew enlisted in the Navy shortly after Pearl Harbor, falling victim to the war hysteria and feeling it was his patriotic duty to come to the defense of his country."

"His mother has been notified by the U. S. Navy that he has been killed in action. My sister is now bereft of all she has to care for in this world and she is now inconsolable. There is really nothing we can say to her now that will assuage her grief. It seems so unjust that the wicked people who brought on this war should suffer no such loss as she has suffered and should go unpunished by God."

"It is too bad that you and your husband have not been punished by some deadly disease. Maybe, though, you and your husband will have to look into the faces of the dead corpses of your four sons. God always punishes the wicked in some way."

I SHOULD LIKE TO SAY TO the woman who wrote this letter that I quite understand her bitterness. Neither my husband nor I brought on this war. It was brought on by many things beyond the control of any individual. We hope with all our hearts that the citizens of the world will learn from past mistakes and that together we may build a better foundation for peace in the future.

Peace will not be built, however, by people with bitterness in their hearts.

Hollywood Today

By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 7—Now the many questions fans of Dorothy McGuire have been asking, about when would she make another picture, can be answered. Since she played "Claudia" the fans have been interested.

Well, Dorothy and Alan Marshal have been borrowed from David O. Selznick by Charles Koerner and check in at RKO within six weeks for "I Married the Navy."

Charlie, who bought the story from Emmett Lavery, says the yarn is about a man who tries to enlist in the Navy many times, but because of physical disability, is rejected. He marries a WAVE, thinking she will be sent overseas and he can go along. Instead, she is put in a recruiting booth at the Grand Central Station in New York. Sid Rogell will supervise the production, with Richard Wallace directing.

THERE IS a fantastic story back of Mildred Cram's "Forever," a charming tale that originally sold for $5500 and was eventually bought by M-G-M for $75,000. No book has ever had such a history and, with all its changing hands, it has never been seen on stage or screen. Now Sidney Franklin is getting ready to make it, with Joan Fontaine as the heroine.

After Mildred Cram wrote her book—a story of the reincarnation of two lovers—Owen Davis took an option on it for a stage play. That he held it up for movies. Then Janet Gaynor read it, loved it and bought the story for herself. She, in turn, sold it to Ned Griffith, who later sold it to M-G-M for Norma Shearer—and now, at long last, it is going to be produced with Joan.

AN UNFORGETTABLE performance is turned in by Anne Revere as the mother in "The Song of Bernadette." Strange that Anne, whose greatest success was as one of the unfortunate women in the stage play, "The Children's Hour," should have won such acclaim in a completely sympathetic part. Now she is to have another mother role at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer in Clarence Brown's "National Velvet." Elizabeth Taylor and Mickey Rooney have the juvenile leads.

I'VE WORN OUT the sidewalk in front of the bookshops featuring window displays of my "Gay Il-literate," which goes on sale tomorrow. All the pangs of new authorship are mine—and I admit it. It's all I can do to keep from canvassing the stores and counting the copies volume by volume and sale by sale.

It seems to me that getting out a book is a lot like having a baby. First, the long months of preparation and actual writing and then the "hospitalization" at the publishers when you wait on needles and pins to see whether your brain child will arrive with an attractive jacket! In spite of the "pangs," I had a lot of fun writing it—and I hope you will have as much fun reading it.

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: A terribly funny story is going the rounds of Hollywood. A young lieutenant, who shall be nameless, and his wife attended one of the big parties given during the holidays. The butler called him by name and seemed very glad to see him. "Haven't I seen you somewhere?" the lieutenant asked the attentive servant. "Oh, yes sir" was the reply. "I worked for Mr. X in New York and you were at many of his parties."

"How do you like Hollywood?" the butler was then asked. "Oh, sir" was the reply, "I think it's terrible. You take this party. Did you ever see so many dreadful people?"

HAD A LONG TALK with Ray Bolger, who returned from Austraña around Thanksgiving time. He certainly had some experiences overseas and from the letters received he did a marvelous job of entertaining the boys. He said that he was discussing several pictures but had not yet made up his mind. The reports, he told me, that he had gone East were erroneous. He was very upset over a Capt. Henry Dick, a bombardier, who lost a leg flying over Berlin. Dick was in Bolger's show, "On Your Toes," and in many other musicals—a dancer—a thing that depressed Ray. Irving Berlin had been to see Capt. Dick and brought him much encouragement.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: Arthur Lyon has presented Kitty Carlisle with a diamond ring, so it looks as if their engagement is official; J. Stuart Blackton's widow is helping the war effort by driving a taxi. J. Stuart was one of our pioneer producers; Errol Flynn and Nora Eddington, with a group of friends, were being pointed out by the visiting tourists in a local cafe; Betty Grable will call her baby Harry, Jr., it's a boy, and she hopes it will be, although they both will welcome a girl, too; Jean Phillips, once Jean Harlow's stand-in, is in Reno obtaining a divorce from Fred Phillips, make-up man; Luise Rainer has cabled friends she has landed somewhere in Italy, where she is entertaining the boys; Betty Hutton and Charles Russell, actor, have discovered each other; Jane Withers has authored a story called "What Happens at 18" and Republic is interested. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Russians Celebrate Orthodox Christmas

MOSCOW, Jan. 7 (AP)—Candle-lit Christmas trees sparkled in Russian homes today and worshippers turned out in greater numbers than anytime since 1917 as Russians celebrated their orthodox Christmas.

Except for the special church services, however, the Soviets put in a wartime working day as usual.

Young people and a scattering of Red army men on leave were noted in the congregations.

Smart Set Mrs. Francis Ward Paine to Wed

By BETTY ALDEN

ONE OF the most socially important of January weddings will be that of Mrs. Francis Ward Paine of Chestnut Hill and Mr. Henry S. Middendorf of Baltimore, first news of which is printed here. It will be a small informal affair Jan. 22 at Mrs. Paine's home in Hammond st.

The principals in this interesting romance are parents by their previous marriages. Mrs. Paine has three sons and two daughters and Mr. Middendorf has three sons and one daughter whose range of ages is somewhat older than their new step-brothers and sisters. Two of the Middendorf children are at college and two at boarding school. Mr. Middendorf is moving his business to Boston and the two families will all live together at Mrs. Paine's spacious home.

Barbara Ann Newbert

The bride-to-be is the former Frances J. Hatch, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Hatch of Newton and widow of F. Ward Paine, wealthy broker. Mr. Middendorf was in the class of 1916 at Harvard where he and his twin, John William Middendorf, Jr., were prominent in athletics and club affairs.

POST DEB Barbara Ann Newbert of Waban looked as pretty and peppy as ever the other evening as she and her daily double, Lieut. John P. Kelly USNR, samba-ed in the Copley-Plaza Oval Room. She wore white orchids on her black dinner gown ruffled in white at the low oval neckline and tight fitting wrists.

CUNNING GLAMOUR CAP

Little whiff of a felt half-hat with frivolous anchorage of ribbon bows that also play a turn-about role for charming halo effect. Black, brown, aqua, blue, red, Kelly green, grape. Hat Bar, street floor, Boston, Brookline, Wellesley.

Silk Suit Is Tops

By BETTINA BEDWELL

THE suit made out of real silk is hard to come by, and for this reason is prized beyond anything by the top flight dressers of this country.

Right now in the heart of winter, suits like this are being worn with fur coats for a lot of dress-up doings in the city. And when they can't get silk they wear rayon, which is pretty fine too. Stiff solid faile, bengaline and such materials, made into very simple suits with good lines, are worth their weight in any woman's money.

When a great tailor makes such a suit, as Knize made the model sketched by Miss Dulin, you have something to wear for a long time. This suit is black gros-grain faille silk, with a rather wide-rolled collar and curved breast pockets. A triple-jeweled chain from jeweled flowers by John Rubel makes the most gorgeous sparkle on the jacket.

YOU MAY BE ONE of legion who out-Sinatra Sinatra in the bath tub . . . but, if you're not, you'll certainly want to . . . when you give yourself a rich-feeling, lady-of-leisure bubble bath . . . In softened water effervescing millions of tiny, foaming, gurgling, delusive globules to hug your form in tender caress.

To many women . . . bathing is simply a matter of daily routine . . . since cleanliness is a major factor in most everyone's general health program. But, why not make a delightful ritual of it . . . like the glamour gals of the screen.

It can be a whole series of beauty treatments rolled into one, as well . . . for many of the cinema stars . . . whose dancing feet carry them through a strenuous schedule each day . . . rely on their bubble baths to keep them in exuberant health . . . and to maintain that sparkling vivacity.

ENJOY A SIMPLE FACIAL, TOO

A great deal more than just cleanliness can be derived from a bath. It can relax your tired muscles and overwrought nerves. It can serve as a complement to a simple facial . . . for after removing your makeup, coat your face well with a thick layer of cold cream. And, while you're lolling in the soft, soaping water . . . driving the day's tenseness out of your body and mind . . . the water of your bath will open your facial pores . . . allowing the cream to work in and give them a deep cleansing.

This is the kind of bath to take at night.

For the best kind of a bubble bath . . . and the preparation in mind is an inexpensive powder, which foams up immediately . . . run your tub with equal amounts of hot and cold water . . . and pour the bubble mixture into the water as it runs from the faucet.

Let the water run full force . . . so that the pressure will make millions of little balloons turn into foam.

USE YOUR TOWEL GENTLY

A tiny scoop . . . just the right amount to be used . . . goes with the bottle of bubble bath mixture . . . and will serve to turn out a bath concoction delightful to see and feel.

Once out of the tub . . . use your towel gently . . . gently blotting yourself dry. Remove what remains of the cold cream on your face . . . and you will be charmed to see how the cream has worked out the grime like magic . . . leaving your skin fresh and clean.

This is the Hollywood formula for a bubble bath . . . and, after you try it . . . see how the luxurious feeling gives you morale a wonder uplift.

For the name of this 59-cent bubble mixture, phone the Beauty Dept., LIBERTY 4000, except the week-end, or write, care of the Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Allowance to Mother

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: I've been in service over a year, and when I first applied for my mother's allotment, I did not know a mother could receive an allowance from two sons. I am now planning on marrying, but don't like to think my mother won't get any money from me.

If I make my mother an allotment, will the government give her anything in addition? U. S. M. If a mother is dependent on two sons for a substantial portion of her support, she is entitled to an allowance of $37 a month from each son. The government contributes part of this. A married son contributes $5 to his mother's allowance, and a single son gives $22 out of his check.

I suggest you get an application blank from your commanding officer and make your mother an allowance. When you marry, you will make out a new application for a wife's allowance, but that will not stop your mother's allowance. Your contribution for both allowances will be $27 a month. Your mother will get $37 and your wife $50 a month.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

When a soldier or sailor takes out insurance in National Service Life, how does he pay the premium?

W. H.

The premiums on the government insurance which the men and women in the service take out, are deducted from their base pay before their checks are sent on to them. They may pay these premiums monthly, quarterly, semi-annually or annually.

DO YOU KNOW what the most frequently wasted food is? Bread! Bread came out worst offender in a survey on waste. There's not enough space to tell all the use-up ways for bread at once. But one not so well known way to serve something good made with leftover bread is crispy bread sticks that rely on your favorite low-point salad oil for good flavor.

BREAD STICKS

Cut unsliced leftover bread into oblong 3-inches by 1-inch. To ¼ cup salad oil add a teaspoon of finely minced onion. Season mixture to stand so flavors blend thoroughly. Brush bread oblongs on all sides with salad oil mixture, set on baking sheet, and bake in moderate oven (375 deg. F.) 15 minutes. Behold, a delicious crisp bread to serve with soups, salads, main dishes—and no one will ask for butter.

Here's a new recipe for that old favorite—chocolate bread pudding. Toast the left over bread in the oven to crispiness, then roll out in nice dry crumbs to be used this way:

CHOCOLATE BREAD PUDDING

1 cup dry bread crumbs
1 square (1 oz.) baking chocolate, shaved or grated
2 cups milk, scalded
1 cup butter 1 cup sugar
¼ tsp. salt 1 tsp. vanilla
1 egg, well beaten

Mix bread crumbs with shaved chocolate and add to scalded milk in saucepan; stir over low heat until chocolate is melted. Add butter and cool slightly. Then add remaining ingredients and mix thoroughly. Pour into well buttered 6-cup casserole, and bake in a moderate oven, 375 deg. F., for 1 hour, or until a sharp knife inserted in the center comes out clean. Serve hot with cream or hard sauce. Makes 6 servings.

ORANGE FRENCH TOAST

2-3 cup orange juice
1 tsp. orange rind, grated
1 tsp. sugar 1 cup cinnamon
2 eggs 5 to 6 slices dry bread
Butter or margarine

Combine orange juice, rind and sugar. Add cinnamon to eggs, and beat until light and frothy. Whip sweetened fruit juice into beaten eggs with a fork. Dip each slice of bread into egg-and-fruit mixture and fry slices slowly in butter on moderately hot griddle or in frying pan over low flame. Turn to brown lightly on both sides. Arrange toast slices on hot platter to overlap. Serve with honey.

CINNAMON TOAST

Spread 6 slices white, whole-wheat or raisin toast with 2 tsp. butter or margarine. Trim the crusts or not as preferred. Blend 1 tsp. cinnamon with 3 tsp. sugar and sprinkle over the toast. Place in a moderate oven of 350 deg. F. or in broiler oven until sugar melts, then cut in triangles or strips and serve. If preferred, the bread may be toasted on one side only, and the combined butter, cinnamon and sugar spread on the untoasted side. Put in broiler oven until the sugar melts. Brown or maple sugar, honey, grated cheese or a mixture of 1 tsp. each of orange juice and grated orange rind, and ¼ cup sugar may be substituted for the cinnamon mixture.

BREAD DUMPLINGS

¾ cups soft bread crumbs
4 tsp. butter or margarine
1 small onion, minced
¼ tsp. pepper ½ tsp. salt
1 tsp. minced parsley
2 eggs, beaten
Soak crumbs in water and press out the water. Melt butter, add onion and cook slowly over slow fire until golden brown. Add crumbs and continue cooking until the mixture is somewhat dry. Remove from fire, add seasonings and well beaten eggs. Form into balls, using one tablespoon of mixture for each ball. Drop into boiling water, cover, boil gently until the dumplings rise to top of water—about 25 minutes. Drain. Garnish with dry crumbs browned in butter, and serve with meat.

Broadway

By Dorothy Kilgallen

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—"Probably a new high for a solo guest maestro playing a Broadway picture house without his own band will be set by Paul Whiteman . . . when he goes into the Roxy at the end of April. Whiteman will receive $6500 for his chore at the 20th-Fox flagship" . . . The dapper and rotund gentleman who is the unchallenged Dean of American Jazz is known as "Pops" to the boys in the band, and although he realizes the nickname is an affectionate one, he wishes rather wistfully the musical world would think up a new one for him. After all, he's only 50.

FAMOUS NAMES are woven into the fabric of the legend of Pops . . . There was Gershwin, a young, obscure and penniless writer of songs when Paul Whiteman met him. He was writing tunes that fell unfamiliarly on Tin Pan Alley's ears, and Tin Pan Alley was not given to experiment . . . But "Pops" was, and out of their first meeting came a fine genuine friendship, and out of that friendship came "Swingtime in Blue" at the urging of the Dean.

POPS WILL NEVER forget Feb. 12, 1924, the night when, at Aeolian Hall, he played a program called "An Experiment in Modern Music." Whiteman had commissioned Victor Herbert to compose four original serenades, and Zee Confrey was going to introduce his sparkling "Kitten on the Keys." But it was advance talk of the Rhapsody—reported to be a daring, turbulent departure from musical convention—that pinned the elegant audience to their seats.

Frances Alda, Amelita Galli Curci, Mary Garden, Deems Taylor, Alma Gluck, Fannie Hurst, Jascha Heifetz, Otto Kahn, Fritz Kreisler and Sergei Rachmaninoff were in the house . . . and in the front row the Gershwin family, beaming and bewildered, huddled together defensively and listened to friend Irving Berlin tell them they couldn't miss, they simply couldn't.

When Gershwin took his seat at the piano—young, frail, intense and defenseless looking under the bright lights—Whiteman raised his baton and whispered, "It's sink or swim now, George. They'll either love it or hate it. Either way give it everything."

The ovation that followed the "Rhapsody" that night has seldom been equalled in any concert hall. In the center of the stage, Whiteman and Gershwin wept as the audience virtually demolished the pews in a terrific clamor of approval.

ROOM AND BOARD

Star Shine

By Sidney Skolsky

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 7.—Sonja Henie's picture for William Goetz will be Walter Reisch's story, "The Countess of Monte Cristo," in which Miss Henie plays the role of a movie extra . . . Garbo's deal to do "Lena Storm" for RKO has been called off, and Gee Gee is on the search for a picture again . . . Ava Gardner and Willis Goldbeck are getting to be a thing . . . "Winged Victory" will be made into a movie without the addition of "big names." It will be in technicolor, and the scenario will be written by Moss Hart . . . Cass Daley may become a regular on the Bing Crosby program . . . Will Hays will be in town next week . . . Practically every company has entered a bid for John Van Druten's "The Voice of the Turtle."

Bonita Granville

BONITA GRANVILLE and Jess Barker are giving a continuous performance . . . Paul Henreid, every time he is interviewed by a fan magazine writer, is questioned about Bette Davis. Robert Thoren has supplied him with a standard answer, and now when asked Henreid replies: "O yes, that girl in whose mouth I always put those cigarettes."

BONITA GRANVILLE and Jess Barker are giving a continuous performance . . . Paul Henreid, every time he is interviewed by a fan magazine writer, is questioned about Bette Davis. Robert Thoren has supplied him with a standard answer, and now when asked Henreid replies: "O yes, that girl in whose mouth I always put those cigarettes."

VERONICA LAKE has a secret, and a very high ranking military romance in the offing. She met him while on tour . . . Billy Wilder will direct Gary Cooper in "Cassanova Q. Brown," the Nunnally Johnson picture . . . Move the theater where they show silent pictures, is going to play a Charles Boyer picture and a Rudolph Valentino picture, allowing the patrons to vote on each player's respective appeal . . . Humphrey Bogart is being assisted in his camp tour in Africa by Eric Jack Nelson, who used to be an assistant property man at Warners. Bogart saw him in a camp there and asked to have him assigned to the Bogart troop.

RICHARD GREENE is making a film in England with his wife, Pat Medina . . . John Miljan, the character actor, dons overalls every night and works at the Westwood Engineering Co., turning out precision tools for the Navy. Every day he puts on a full dress suit and is a millionaire in Donald O'Connor's picture, "The Merry Monarchs."

LUPE VELEZ and Arturo de Cordova have kissed and made up again, and are now "the best of friends" . . . Alexander Knox, who is playing Woodrow Wilson, in preparing for his role says that he discovered that Wilson had only one noticeable idiosyncrasy. That was a habit of fingering the gold watch chain that he wore across his vest. "It would be accurate characterization to make use of that gesture," Knox admits, "but I'm afraid of what might happen if I did. People who didn't know Wilson might mistake it for a habit of mine, and it might fascinate them, and if that happened I'd end up stealing the picture from myself."

George Holland

Boston After Dark

FIRST CAME NEWS from a Cambridge hospital that his wife had presented him a baby—daughter, and then came greetings from Washington in the form of a promotion to senior grade of Lieut. Frank Sweeney, USNR, attached to Navy headquarters in Causeway st. . . . It was quite a day for the lieutenant, who was prominent as a civilian in radio and advertising in Greater Boston . . . The heiress to the Sweeney fortunes is to be named Judith Ann, and she and her mother are well.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., has a way of describing what is happening to the Germans on the eastern front . . . "The Heinies are not retreating," says young Doug . . . "They are advancing in the direction from which they came."

MANNA FROM HOLLYWOOD fell into the laps of Sheldon H. Fairbanks, managing director of the Sportsmen's Show, and his associates, when Paramount Pictures wired $1750 in coin of the realm for the immediate delivery of the trained bear act known as "Min and Bill" . . . As the Sportsmen's Show is scheduled to play only five days at the Boston Arena, with its opening Jan. 14 and the closing on the 18th inst., Paramount could have had the act without payment of a premium in exactly eleven days . . . But shooting has begun already on the picture in which the bear act is being used, and postponement of a shooting schedule is highly expensive . . . The deal was one of those two-way breaks, incidentally, for Mr. Fairbanks.

HIS ORIGINAL choice for the trained bears' spot in his lavish 20-act program was the comedy bear-act known as The Stevens Brothers and Big Boy . . . But the Stevens boys and Big Boy were under contract at the time to appear in the Red Skelton picture "Mr. Co-Ed," and the time for completion of that picture was indefinite . . . Sheldon learned two days ago that this first choice in the bear department was available, and as Paramount had queried him about releasing "Min and Bill," he had optioned the Stevens unit for his show . . . The worst that could have happened would have been the presence of two bear acts on the same bill, at some additional expense, of course . . . But the best, not the worst, happened to happen.

THAT SAME SKELTON FILM to be known as "Mr. Co-Ed" will give picture audiences a first featured view of beautiful little Ethel Smith, the "foremost exponent of Latin-American rhythms on the organ" . . . Ethel is currently at the Copley Plaza's Oval Room . . . In "Mr. Co-Ed," Miss Smith will sing and dance and play the organ . . . Preliminaries out of the way, we now come to the story . . . The cast and crew of "Mr. Co-Ed" were so smitten with petite Miss Smith that they gave the little rumba-samba organist an Irish setter puppy which they dubbed "Tico-tico," after a number Ethel plays so tremendously on the electric organ . . . On the train coming to Boston, "Tico-tico" was having a time for himself and making a hit with the artist's co-travelers until he decided to take a bite of leather from a shoe . . . "Tico" was straightway exiled to the baggage car for miles and miles of a long trip . . . The pup happened to select the foot of the train's conductor for his chew of leather.

THE FRANK SINATRA program got off to a wonderful start . . . Unless this department was dreaming when it should have been listening, the millenium has arrived with Frankie's inauguration of this half-hour show . . . Another miracle emerged . . . Frankie's bobby-soxer pets got a chance to prove their worth as an audience for jokes and chatter as well as songs . . . They were wonderful . . . If Bob Hope and the other camp playing comedians think that service men and girls are the easiest audiences in history, they are wrong.

Frankie's little pets are the easiest, nonpareil . . . There has never, never been anything like them . . . And envision this, if possible . . . New bobby-soxers are being graduated into the Sinatra-audience in swarms each and every year . . . They make the easiest audience in the world . . . With millions of these new troglodytes coming into being every twelve-month, that not implausible prospect of Frankie being able to perpetuate himself as an attraction is upon us! . . . Of course, there is the chance that Frankie may lose some of his fans by graduation into—well, let us call it woman's estate . . . But here is one department that thinks that he'll hold on to his fans . . . As surely as Abbott and Costello are going to lose their grip on theirs!

Trevor Film Real Western

30 By PAUL MURPHY
Gripping melodrama and poignant love combine in "The Woman of the Town," now at the Paramount and Fenway, to produce a vivid re-enactment of the vivid era in American history.
By far one of the best of the western thrillers, the picture has all the two-fisted, he-man action, tragedy and love of the dime novel, combined with grand acting by Claire Trevor and Albert Dekker.
Miss Trevor, always at her best in the role of a shady lady, plays glamorous Dora Hand, a show girl in a leading saloon of lawless Dodge City, Kan., during the roaring 1870's.
Dekker, dynamic and romantic, is cast as Bat Masterson, an ambitious newspaperman, who comes to Dodge City looking for a job. Instead, he finds himself railroaded into the position of town marshal after he quells a gang of Texans, who killed the former marshal.

When King Kennedy, a millionaire playboy (played by the new leading man Barry Sullivan), arrives in town, Masterson knows that he has a dangerous character to deal with, plus a rival for Dora's love.

GUADALCANAL FILM THRILLS

By MARY X. SULLIVAN

Any civilian who doesn't, on seeing "Guadalcanal Diary," make an appointment with the Red Cross blood bank, buy more war bonds and take inventory of his own contribution to victory, must have no gratitude in his soul. You'll see it—and you should—at the Metropolitan.

The film is a magnificent document, faithfully reproducing the stark, factual saga of that small band of Marines who fought the Japs from tree to tree in the jungle, as written by our own Dick Tregaskis.

Dick, now in a hospital recovering from having shrapnel removed from his brain, must be proud of this picture, and of 20th-Century-Fox for giving his story the treatment it deserved. It is a heart-breaking yet inspiring reminder of the reality of this war.

While it is no more gruesome or spectacular than many fictional war stories, the realization that this is truth . . . that these men sloughing through slime, killing and being killed, are the boys fighting for us . . . makes it doubly poignant.

It is hard to realize that roles are played by actors, except that William Bendix is the same Brooklyn guy that played in "Wake Island."

Aside from that, the fillywood touch has been happily omitted. There is excellent humor in the film, but it is naturally derived.

There are glimpses of moments on the island that would have been spoiled by emphasis, such as the chaplain in the background of one

Gray's Music Hit at Boston

By DON WARD

Glen Gray and his Casa Loma orchestra proved at the Keith-Boston that they can "send" for the jitterbugs as well as pleasing the stodgy folk who like their music sweet.

Quite widely, they open their program with "No Name Jive," in which individual members of the band do hot solos.

Then they go into a smooth Vincent Youmans medley, including "Hallelujah" and "I Want to Be Happy," from "Hit the Deck."

Bob Anthony, vocalist, is a baritone and a pseudo-Sinatra, whose voice is good enough but who, we fear, presages an epidemic of mournful crooning and mooning, with which only Frankie can get them swooning.

Helen Barrett, a girl with a pretty figure and other attributes, top-dances effectively, and little Anita Boyer, a vocalist, sings very well, particularly "Shoo, Shoo, Baby," but someone should tell her that her girl-graduate gown doesn't go with her voice.

The best number in the show is that of Ladd Lyon, who actually makes a balancing act novel and entertaining.

Aines and Arno, comedians, also have some fresh material and handle their clowning like veterans.

scene quietly hearing confessions while grim preparations go on for the big attack.

Preston Foster as Father Donnelly, the chaplain "who never missed a man's fight nor asked a man's creed," gives a splendid performance. In fact, the whole cast is excellent.

Joe Louis Is to Referee Mat Battles in N. E.

By JACK CONWAY

JOE LOUIS WILL include New England on his coming refereeing tour. . . It is likely that the "Brown Bomber" will be signed by Paul Bowser to referee a mat bout featuring The Terror at the Arena. . . Max Waxman, who is making the bookings for Louis, has already signed the champion to officiate in a wrestling contest in Portland.

Baltimore is also on the Louis schedule. . . Under the terms being made in most cities by Waxman, Army relief will receive a percentage of the receipts at the Louis shows. . . The coming tour will enable Louis to get cash with which to pay part of his $117,000 income tax obligation.

Louis isn't broke. . . He has plenty of real estate, insurance and some securities, but his management does not feel it would be wise for him to liquidate any of them at this time. . . They are hopeful that Louis will eventually be permitted to box Billy Conn at a war relief show. . . His end of the purse from a Conn bout would enable Louis to pay off most of his income tax debt.

It is expected that when Louis completes his tour he will go overseas and give exhibitions at Army camps. . . The only thing that may upset this plan is the opening of the second front.

Louis would be certain to receive a grand reception overseas.

Egan Deal Clicks

THE PUBLIC has accepted the deal by which Pat Egan comes to the Bruins and Flash Hollett goes to the Detroit Red Wings. It feels that Ross is usually right on hockey affairs, and that Egan will become one of the most colorful defense men in the league.

The Bruins have been trying to secure Egan for some time. A week ago Tuesday night at the Garden, Frank Ryan was more interested in what Egan was doing for the Red Wings than he was in the work of any other player on the ice.

"Egan would be another Shore with the right handling," said Ryan. "He is a big, powerful fellow with plenty of color. Art Ross likes his style of playing very much."

I agreed with Ryan. Egan has all the natural assets that go to make a top hockey star. He will do well with the Bruins, and even if he comes close to approaching the spot gained in hockey by Shore the deal will be considered successful.

When Ross let Tiny Thompson go to the Chicago Blackhawks for $15,000 and placed Frankie Brimsek at goal, he proved he could judge hockey players. Brimsek developed into one of the greatest stars in hockey.

The great goal tending of Thompson and Brimsek is what has placed Herb Gardiner on the spot with Bruins fans. Gardiner is an average goalie and makes his number of difficult saves, but, of course, he lacks the amazing ability that was possessed by Thompson and Brimsek when they played for the Rossmen.

Gardiner has improved since the season started, and I look for him to turn in some good games from here on.

Random Shots at Target

THERE WILL be many racegoers from New England at the opening of Hialeah Park today. . . Bobby Goldman of the Narragansett Park press department, is employed at the Florida tracks. . . Horace Wade, who has been working at the publicity department at Tropical Park, will remain in Florida for the Hialeah meeting.

Johnny Rucker to Stay in Baseball

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 7 (AP)—Despite an ailing back, Outfielder Johnny Rucker plans to play with the New York Giants this season because "baseball has been hard hit by the draft and I feel that I should help out, if I can."

Rucker, rejected for the armed forces last year because of an injury to his back, previously was reported planning to retire from baseball.

Pitcher Feldman Returns to Giants

FT. SMITH, Ark., Jan. 7 (AP)—Pitcher Harry (Hank) Feldman of the New York Giants, forced out of play in midseason last year because of ill-health, says he has received permission from his doctor to resume activity, and will report to the Giants for the spring training.

Races at 60

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 7 (AP)—A 60-year-old marathon runner, who won the famous Patriot Day race in Boston just 27 years ago, will try his legs again Saturday in the 38th annual Jackson Day run sponsored by the New Orleans Y. M. C. A.

The runner, Bill Kennedy of New Haven, Ct., made the 26-mile dash in Boston in two hours, 28 minutes and 37 1-5 seconds.

Art Ross Proves Genius In Many Player Shifts

By BILL GRIMES

One of the reasons Art Ross has been a success as a hockey coach is that he has never hesitated to convert a forward into a defenseman or vice-versa. And, a check back through the H. L. records proves that Uncle Arthur hasn't erred in his judgment.

Of course, it Ross' smartest move was when he shifted Bill Cowley from left wing to center ice. But, here we go into detail of Cowley's rise to fame as the game's greatest play maker, let's review some of the other conversions made by Art Ross, which have clicked.

Jimmy "Sail" Herberts thought he was a defenseman; Eddie Shore envisioned himself as a right winger. Herberts was one of the most colorful enters of his time and Shore did all right by himself on the defense.

DYNAMITE LINE

In the fall of 1927, Art Ross brought up two minor league defensemen, Dit Clapper from the Boston Tigers and Dutch Gainer from Calgary. Uncle Arthur must have been psychic at that time for he assigned Clapper to play right wing and Gainer to the opposite flank. The following season, the Bruins acquired Cooney Weiland, from Minneapolis, a center forward, and Uncle Arthur had his famous Dynamite line, which during the 1929-30 season scored 102 goals, and made 81 assists for a total of 183 points.

Until he signed a Boston contract, Woodie Dumart, of the Bruins, was a defenseman. But, Uncle Arthur converted him into a left wing, moved Bobby Bauer from the play-making berth to right wing and assigned Milt Schmidt to play center, before he sent the two kids to Providence for seasoning.

Art Ross realized that Clapper, Gainer, and Dumart would have preferred to remain on the defense and also that Shore felt he would receive more plaudits as a forward. Moreover, he was aware of the fact that Milt Schmidt felt that he was inferior to Bobby Bauer as a play-maker. But, Uncle Arthur stuck to his guns and his judgment has long since been vindicated.

ART ROSS

Correct in Sizing Ice Stars

cated. But, as we stated above, Ross' greatest piece of strategy came at the start of the 1936-37 season, when he assigned Bill Cowley to be the pivot man for Ray Gettiffe and Charlie Sands.

"Cowboy" Bill broke into the N. H. L. with St. Louis in 1934, playing left wing, first with the Roche brothers Desse and Earl and then with the season with Eddie Finnegan and Pete Kelly.

Because Cowley was reported to have a chronic knee injury, the N. H. L. managers laid off him when the Mound City club blew up the next year. However, Art Ross took a gamble and brought Cowley to the Bruins and played him at left wing on Peggy O'Neill's line.

During the first season Cowley was with the Bruins, Ross was convinced that the current N. H. L. scoring leader was a natural play maker. Cowley was never a speed merchant and therefore wasn't able to show to advantage as a back checker, which the wings of those days were supposed to be.

And Cowley clicked from the start as a center ice man. He has made more unknown and even mediocre wings into stars than any play-maker the N. H. L. has ever produced. And, we have repeatedly stated in the past, if he had been setting up plays for such outstanding wingers as the Cook brothers, Chuck Conacher and Busher Jackson, Dit Clapper and Dutch Gainer, Cowley wouldn't have had to wait for the war to shatter all scoring records.

During the two and a fraction seasons Ray Gettiffe and Charlie Sands were the wings on the Cowley line they scored a total of 79 goals and amassed a total of 141 points.

CONACHER TOP SCORER

Roy Conacher blossomed out as the top scorer of the N. H. L. left wingers the first year he played in the league. Young Conacher possessed a fine shot and with Cowley feeding him most of the scoring passes, Roy tallied 26 times that year. In the four years Conacher played with Cowley he scored a total of 92, and but for the fact that Cowboy Bill played in only 28 games during the 1941-42 season, Conacher would have been a 100-goaler with something to spare.

Yes, sir, Art Ross made no mistake when he converted Cowley into a center ice man. Barring injuries, Bill will knock all scoring records into a cocked hat this year, for with 25 games to play he has amassed a total of 52 points, which is just 21 shy of the record which is held jointly by Cooney Weiland and Dit Clapper and Bentley, and which Bill missed trying by a single point a year ago.

Bingham Heads Grid Rule Board

Lieut.-Col. William J. Bingham, director of Athletics at Harvard, now attached to the First Service Command in Boston, was named today to succeed the late Walter R. Okeson of Lehigh, as chairman of the NCAA football rules committee.

Col. Bingham has served as secretary to the rules committee for several years.

The NCAA, in session in New York, also renewed its policy of 1943, which was to continue whenever possible, regular, pre-war tournaments and championship series. Seven of the association's normal 10 events were held as scheduled during the past year.

Kilrea to Play

Six More Games

HERSHEY, Pa., Jan. 7 (INS)—Wally Kilrea, captain of the Hershey Bears and holder of the all-time professional hockey scoring record of 31 goals and 68 assists for 99 points, was scheduled today to play six more tilts before leaving for the Army.

The flashy center was inducted yesterday and will report for his soldier's uniform at the New Cumberland reception center Jan. 27.

Purdue Guard Called

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Jan. 7 (AP)—Dick Barwegen, junior guard voted "most valuable" member of Purdue's Big Ten football co-champion 1943 football team, has received orders to report for active Army duty at Ft. Sheridan, Ill., Saturday. He is a member of the Army Enlisted Reserve Corps.

Shame, Albie

WATERBURY, Ct., Jan. 7 (AP)—When Albie Booth, Yale's "mighty atom" of the gridiron a decade ago, assumed the presidency of the Kiwanis club recently, the retiring president tossed him a football instead of a gavel. Booth muffed it.

Jess Willard Sues For Movie Profits

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 7 (AP)—Jess Willard, former world heavyweight boxing champion, filed suit against Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corp., demanding an accounting of profits from the use of movies made of his title fight with Jack Dempsey in Toledo, O., July 4, 1919.

Willard contends that in 1941 the studio used the film in "The Great American Broadcast" without notification or payment to him of the one-third interest he claims in it.

Yankee Leader

Injures Big Toe

NEW YORK, Jan. 7 (AP)—Joe McCarthy's aim was a little short when he pitched a log on the fireplace of his Buffalo home during the Christmas holidays.

So the manager of the championship New York Yankees won't be in the party of club officials that will inspect the club's spring training site at Atlantic City over the week-end. The log fell on McCarthy's big toe of his right foot, giving him a painful, but not serious injury, club officials said.

Pics, Falcons In Grudge Tilt

There will be little love lost and no punches pulled at the Boston Arena tomorrow and Sunday nights when the Olympics and the Philadelphia Falcons clash.

The team from the City of Brotherly Love will come to Boston with the League's top badman, Joe Desson, as well as two outstanding penalty-getters, Tom Rockey and Doug Maher.

Outdoors Writers Meet in Georgia

ALBANY, Ga., Jan. 7 (AP)—Members of the Outdoor Writers' Ass'n of America will gather here tomorrow for a hunting trip and for executive sessions to plan post-war activities.

Visiting writers are Hammond Brown of the Baltimore Post, association president, Henry Davis, Bridgeport, Ct.; H. P. Sheldon of Vermont, Johnny Mock, Pittsburgh Post, and Jimmy Steuben of Columbus, association secretary.

Clayburne to Meet

Cortez on Mat Here

Jack Clayburne, colored champion, will try to continue his torrid pace toward a crack at the duration crown when he takes on Manuel Cortez, former professional boxer, in the main bout of the weekly wrestling show at the Arena Wednesday night.

Clayburne, a crowd-pleasing gymnast type of grappler, has been undefeated in local competition since he made his debut in the Hub late last fall.

SONNY HORNE TO DEMAND RETURN BOUT

George (Sonny) Horne, who lost a unanimous decision to Henry Chmielewski at the Callahan A. C. show in Mechanics Building, will demand a return bout according to reports which were rife in the Horne camp today.

It was evident to experts at the ringside that Horne, who kept the Hub appointment only to fulfill a contract, was not only overweight but badly out of condition. It was also the consensus of opinion that Horne of the Merchant Marine service had lost his edge as a result of duties at sea and it is believed that the Portland, Me., Shipyard worker will have more difficulty outpointing his Niles, Ohio, rival at another meeting.

The crowd, held down to 3180 by bad weather, paid a gross of $6451 and a net of $5730 to witness the bouts.

Chmielewski carried every round but the second and last when Horne showed the only signs of aggressiveness.

Horne rallied occasionally in the rounds he lost which might be the reason why some objected to the decision.

Jonny Mulligan, 166, Lowell, knocked out Bobby Howard, 159, Worcester, with a left hand shot to the body in the second round of a scheduled six. Howard was also down for nine in the first round.

Tony Hatch, Saugus, 161, kayoed Stonewall Jackson, 167, Lynn, in the second round of a scheduled six.

Mike Cascio, 143, South End, defeated Paul Di Amico, 145, Everett, 6 rounds.

Johnny Dougwillow, Lynn, 148, and Gene Ward, 147½, Chicago, fought a six-round draw.

Honor Lou Little

NEW YORK, Jan. 7 (AP)—Lou Little, Columbia University football coach, last night was formally presented the Touchdown Club's annual award for meritorious contribution to the game.

Servicemen In Skates Show

Something new and timely will be introduced at this year's Silver Skates Derby, which will be held three weeks from Sunday at the Boston Garden.

The event will be known as the Servicemen's Special and is the "brain child" of Ben Levas, head of the Derby committee. It will give all soldiers, sailors and Marines in this area a chance to pit their skill against one another and win a handsome trophy.

No entry fee is required from boys in the armed forces. A simple letter from his athletic or recreation officer, proving his amateur status is all that is necessary.

In the event that a large number of servicemen enter, there will be trials and a final event.

Other than this feature, the Derby will be virtually the same as in other years. Age limits permit all from four to 104 to compete, promising wide open competition and thrills galore.

Costantino Seeks Title

NEW YORK, Jan. 7 (INS)—Lulu Costantino, New York East Sider, will attempt tonight to qualify for a New York commission lightweight championship fight when he encounters Beau Jack, the crown-wearer, in a 10-round non-title bout at Madison Square Garden.

Boxers Scarce

CHICAGO, Jan. 7 (AP)—Finding top boxing talent in these days of manpower shortage is a tough job, says Matchmaker Jack Hurley.

A show featuring ranking fighters was scheduled for the Chicago Stadium Jan. 28 but Hurley has returned from New York empty-handed. He says the best boxers are signed far in advance for shows and have more money to kill.
